Jon is a Managing Director at Siemens PLC, a global business headquartered in the North West for the UK, that provides solutions for much of today's large energy, industrial & transportation challenges – from power generation and distribution, to train and rail solutions, alongside building technologies.

Jon has spent over 20 years in senior management & board level roles both within large organisations and an SME, where his focus has been Energy; from gas and electricity suppliers, to smart metering, and more recently switchgear & commercial electric vehicle charging.

Jon has a deep interest in high performing business cultures and works across Siemens to support the educational sourcing and nurturing of the emerging talent community. The ambition is for those young in their career to find fulfilment of experience in their specialisms, ranging from engineering to marketing, creating the skills mix needed for tomorrow's Siemens.

It is this ambition to give every young person the opportunity to fulfil their potential, that is the kernel of Jon's key contribution to the Trust, alongside the challenges of leading a business and delivering to stakeholders against its goals and strategy.
